By this time there should be a number of markers available that identify physical traits of the individual contributing the DNA. It should be possible, using this information, to narrow the search for a suspect, with consequent increases in the accuracy and efficiency of operation. 5. Statistical and Population Issues Over the past 10 years, data on allele frequencies for VNTR loci have accumulated in large numbers for population groups throughout the world and in the United States. There are far too many genotypes in the population for all genotypic frequencies to be included in the database. Hence it is necessary to record allele frequencies and arrive at profile frequencies by use of population genetics theory. In a large, randomly mating population, the frequency of a profile is given by the product rule, which states that the frequency of a multilocus genotype is given by the product of the allele frequencies, with a...
