Excerpt from A Modern Dreamer Is there room for dreams? The world is crowded, but is there not still unoccupied some manger for meditation? Is there not in this modern life of activity and accomplishment space left for a little sentiment, even though it be touched with a bit of old-fashioned fancy? Is there not some corner in the shadow of the skyscrapers where the Mystic may rest and look beyond the dust and smoke to a far-away estate which is neither taxed nor mortgaged nor advertised? Discarded machinery is sold for junk and thrown upon the scrap heap. In a western town one may often see half a dozen farmers working at one of those piles, trying to find odd pieces which will enable them, at small expense, to patch and mend, and perhaps make their plows and planters, their mowers and harvesters, last another season. When Truth becomes ineffective it is junked, and called facts. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
