The Sisters of Charity, proposing the establishment of a benevolent institution for the sick, requested the co-operation of the society, which appointed twelve of their number to serve for one year. A proposition was made to the council to attend the alms-house, pest-house and wards of the city in every pauper case for the sum of 600; also to furnish a board of health, if requested, for the term of one year. In a meeting of July 27th, 1848, Homoeopathy was the war-cry, when Dr. Van Dusen brought charges against Dr. J. S. Hewitt of becoming an advocate, and counselor among the initiated one idea impostors of the city. That in the opinion of the association Homoeopathy, in theory and practice, in its sixth or sixthousandth dilution, in its similia similibus 0 curantur, or...
